D.V. Rangarajan

Love and Hate David Mann, 2013-11-12 Love and hate seem to be the dominant emotions that make the world go round and are a central theme in psychotherapy. Love and Hate seeks to answer some important questions about these all consuming passions. Many patients seeking psychotherapy feel unlovable or full of rage and hate. What is it that interferes with the capacity to experience love? This book explores the origins of love and hate from infancy and how they develop through the life cycle. It brings together contemporary views about clinical practice on how psychotherapists and analysts work with and think about love and hate in the transference and countertransference and explores how different schools of thought deal with the subject. David Mann, together with an impressive array of international contributors represent a broad spectrum of psychoanalytic perspectives, including Kleinian, Jungian, Independent Group, and Lacanian, psychotherapists, psychoanalysts and analytical psychologists. With emphasis on clinical illustration throughout, the writers show how different psychoanalytic schools think about and clinically work with the experience and passions of love and hate. It will be invaluable to practitioners and students of psychotherapy, psychoanalysis, analytical psychology and counselling.

Romans: Theological Masterpiece (Volume 2) Joseph R. Holder,2014-05-04 Volume 2 of Joe Holder's exposition of Romans covers Romans chapters 9 through 16. The epistle to the Romans is, indeed, a theological masterpiece. Against the dark background of man's tragic sinfulness, it paints the brilliant scene of God's gracious gift of righteousness through the Lord Jesus Christ. Then, it calls for a practical response of faith and godliness in the believer's daily walk of discipleship.

Paul's Use of the Old Testament in Romans 9.10-18 Brian J. Abasciano,2011-04-21 Brian Abasciano continues his project examining the use of the Old Testament in Romans 9. Abasciano builds upon his forthcoming LNTS volume Paul's Use of the Old Testament in Romans 9.1-9, continuing the project begun in that volume and its intertextual methodology. This method incorporates into a thorough traditional exegesis a comprehensive analysis of Paul's use of Scripture against the background of interpretive traditions surrounding the texts alluded to, with great emphasis placed on analyzing the original contexts of Paul's citations and allusions. Such an intertextual exegesis is conducted in Romans 9:10-33 with an awareness of the broader unit of chapters 9-11 especially, and also the epistle as a whole. Conclusions for the meaning of these passages and their theological significance are drawn. Formerly the Journal for the Study of the New Testament Supplement, this is a book series that explores the many aspects of New Testament study including historical perspectives, social-scientific and literary theory, and theological, cultural and contextual approaches. The Early Christianity in Context series, a part of JSNTS , examines the birth and development of early Christianity up to the end of the third century CE. The series places Christianity in its social, cultural, political and economic context. European Seminar on Christian Origins and Journal for the Study of the Historical Jesus Supplement are also part of JSNTS .

Love, Hatred, and Other Passions Paolo Santangelo,Donatella Guida,2006-12-01 This volume aims at starting a debate on functions, role and relevance of states of mind in Chinese History and civilization. It focuses on an anthropological aspect of human experience, the affective world, as it is represented and evaluated in the various sources. A number of well-known specialists, ranging from the philosophical basic concepts to some fundamental questions about terminology, analyze literary, historical and judicial materials: this collection of essays presents different opinions, experiences and perspectives on the understanding of emotional and mental states in Chinese civilization, as well as about the difficulties met on the topic. A fascinating and useful reading for all those who are interested in humanities and in the history of mentality.

The Romaunt of the Rose Charles Dahlberg,1999 The Romaunt of the Rose translates in abridged form a long dream vision, part elegant romance, part rollicking satire, written in France during the thirteenth century. The French original, Le Roman de la Rose, had a profound influence on Chaucer, who says he translated the work. From the sixteenth century to the mid-nineteenth, scholars assumed that the Romaunt comprised large fragments of that translation. Subsequent debates have divided the Romaunt into two or three segments, and proffered arguments that Chaucer was responsible for one or more of them, or for none. The current consensus is that he almost certainly wrote the first 1,705 lines. Charles Dahlberg's edition of the Romaunt provides a full summary of scholarship on the question of authorship as well as other important topics, including a useful survey of the influence of the French poem on Chaucer.

Sura's Quotable Quotes, Adages and Sayings D.V. Rangarajan,2004-09

Nations We Love to Hate Josef Joffe,2005 Shows how old fantasies about Jews have found new targets amongst Europeans in the postwar period. While classical, operational antisemitism has disappeared, it has been replaced by eliminationism-lite, which focuses not on individual Jews but on the Jewish country, Israel, and its leaders. Notes parallels between anti-Israelism and anti-Americanism; both involve stereotyping, denigration, demonization (especially the view that Israel and America are involved in a conspiracy, directed by the former, to control the world), obsession, and elimination. While classical antisemitism has migrated to Islamic countries, new antisemitism flourishes in Europe, which employs a double standard to project blame onto the Jewish state and the USA to absolve itself from guilt related to its behavior during the Holocaust. Some features of the old antisemitism - e.g. the Jews as deicides - reappear in modern form. The hatred of Israel and the U.S. derives from their power, national identity, purpose (including a willingness to use force to defend themselves), and position in a world that resembles a Hobbesian hell. Seen as outsiders, the two countries can never be loved.

Musings of an overthinking mind Chitra, These musings spring from the author's over thinking and observant mind. Here, in this book, she shares some of them with you, opening your mind to the awareness of her observations. Hoping your eager and enthusiastic mind will be receptive to her thoughts. May your thoughts in turn enliven your life's journey. God bless.

The Call Katie, 2016-11-28 Many people are afraid of the future, based on their past and present life experiences. This book truly inspires individuals to be encouraged through difficult times, remain devoted and committed to your beliefs, be fearless and flawless through life changes, and apply biblical principles to your daily routine to keep balanced. The Call teaches us how to become more purpose-driven and God-focused. Commit yourself to the Lord, and he will teach and reveal his ways. If you feel like you are all alone in your trials and there is no one who understands, this book is a must read because you are not alone.

Reason and Faith Michael Bergmann, Jeffrey E. Brower, 2016-01-07 The past fifty years have been an enormously fruitful period in the field of philosophy of religion, and few have done more to advance its development during this time than Richard Swinburne. His pioneering work in philosophy of religion is distinguished, not only for the way in which it systematically develops a comprehensive set of positions within this field, but also for the way in which it builds on and contributes to contemporary work in other fields, such as metaphysics, epistemology, and philosophy of science. This volume presents a collection of ten new essays in philosophy of religion that develop and critically engage themes from Swinburne's work. Written by some of the leading figures in the field, these essays focus on issues in both natural theology (dealing with what can be known about God and his relation to the world independently of any particular religious tradition or revelation) and philosophical theology (reflecting critically on the doctrines associated with particular religious traditions). The first six essays address topics familiar from natural theology (faith, theistic arguments, and divine power). The last four essays address topics bearing on philosophical theology (atonement, liturgy, immortality, and the nature of body and soul).

Ethnolinguistics and Cultural Concepts James W. Underhill, 2012-05-17 'Ethnolinguistics' is the study of how language relates to culture and ethnicity. This book offers an original approach to ethnolinguistics, discussing how abstract concepts such as truth, love, hate and war are expressed across cultures and ethnicities. James W. Underhill seeks to situate these key cultural concepts within four languages (English, French, Czech and German). Not only do these concepts differ from language to language, but they go on changing over time. The book explores issues such as how far meaning is politically and culturally influenced, how far language shapes the thought of ethnic groups and how far their thought shapes language, and the role of individuals in the consolidation of cultural concepts. It offers a clear and thought-provoking account of how concepts are understood and will be welcomed by those working in the fields of sociolinguistics, linguistic anthropology, discourse analysis, semantics and pragmatics.
