University in the fight against mafias: Research, teaching and training Stefano D'Alfonso,Gaetano Manfredi,2022-11-02

The commitment of Italian universities to education in the field of legality and to research on the subject of mafias is the main focus of this investigation edited by Stefano D'Alfonso and Gaetano Manfredi. For the first time, data is shown about the overall framework of teaching and research activities dedicated to this topic, with twenty-nine scholars from different academic disciplines and several universities who come together to reflect on the current situation and on the commitment of universities in the fight against mafias, highlighting both strengths and weaknesses of the system. The reflections illustrated here bring to light the dynamic nature of the local and cultural context where universities operate as well as the type of interaction that these institutions maintain with the national and local context. At the same time, it seems clear that great expectations are held at various levels in terms of what universities could do, especially with regards to the demand for knowledge about the best ways to fight mafias. This research reveals that Italian universities possess a considerable capital of knowledge which represents a 'hidden treasure' to be valued and used with the aim of promoting widespread awareness of their role in the anti-mafia field. This book is the result of cooperation between many university professors and researchers, the Parliamentary anti-mafia Committee, the Conference of Italian University Rectors and former minister of University and Research Gaetano Manfredi, under the supervision and coordination of the interdisciplinary research laboratory on mafias and corruption of the Department of Social Sciences of the University of Naples Federico II. This network of professionals and institutions enabled the construction of a significant database where teaching and research activities carried out by scholars from different universities can be identified, across about one hundred academic disciplines.

La disponibilità di molti dati sotto forma digitale ha determinato l'integrazione tra le diverse metodologie di rilevamento, sia innovative che tradizionali, il che costituisce un notevole progresso per giungere ad una conoscenza profonda e globale dell'architettura e della città. Negli ultimi quaranta anni alle tradizionali tecniche di rilevamento architettonico, che si erano sostanzialmente mantenute immutate per molti secoli, si sono aggiunte in modo imprevedibile e con sempre maggiore rapidità una serie di nuove metodologie. L'avvento negli anni ottanta dell'informatica ha determinato mutamenti radicali nella disciplina, dapprima investendo la stessa fotogrammetria, trasformandola da analogica a digitale, e successivamente aprendo le porte intorno alla metà degli anni '90 alla nuova metodologia basata sui laser scanner 3D. Structural dislocations and crack patterns on masonry buildings Angelo Spizuoco, Anna Spizuoco, 2019-07-12
 Analysis of cracks on masonry buildings proves to be quite difficult, and so sometimes expert's scientific knowledge cannot be enough to do so, a vast experience is needed, built on practice gained through field work, phenomena observation and testing during a long professional career. On this matter, needs to be noticed that the majority of pictures present on this book comes from authors' personal archives, collected during an intense and wide job experience. In practical terms, often it is needed to diagnose, within a very short time, a building dislocation and/or having to find out the causes, in order to find urgent solutions or definitive remedies, all involving a huge amount of responsibility, especially on serious cases where there is not much time and hesitations could be fatal. In this book are shown dislocations and crack patterns actually observed, which would turn surely useful to other experts on the building field. Translator: Maria Vexille PUBLISHER: TEKTIME

Comunicare l'assenza. L'Incompiuta di Venosa tra conservazione e innovazione. Marco Lucignano, 2021-01-29 [Italiano]: All'interno del Parco Archeologico di Venosa, in provincia di Potenza, domina una grande croce scoperta, emblema del non-finito medievale: l'Incompiuta, parte dell'abbazia della SS. Trinità. Attraverso le vicende storiche che l'hanno vista protagonista, la presente ricerca analizza il rapporto della chiesa con la colonia romana Venusia e, successivamente, con la città medievale. Tale approccio ha consentito di conoscere il contesto storico, sociale, urbanistico e tecnologico in cui l'Incompiuta si inseriva, come basi per una attendibile lettura morfologica e architettonica del manufatto. Il rilievo dell'abbaziale mediante tecniche di fotogrammetria digitale ha fornito un modello tridimensionale dettagliato, indispensabile per la conoscenza dello stato di fatto dell'organismo architettonico, connotato da un elevato grado di fragilità. Le ipotesi ricostruttive sono state supportate e validate dal rapporto costante con il digital twin derivato dal rilievo e dalle analogie con altre chiese franco-benedettine coeve, e hanno lo scopo di valorizzare l'ambizioso progetto architettonico non ultimato. La predisposizione inoltre di contenuti digitali in realtà aumentata e realtà virtuale per la comunicazione dell'architettura e dei suoi paramenti decorativi hanno infine lo scopo di sperimentare un nuovo livello di fruizione, basato sull'immersività nelle spazialità ricostruite e sull'interazione con le forme architettoniche e scultoree attraverso gli elementi digitali immessi nello spazio fisico mediante la realtà aumentata./[English]: Within the Archaeological Park of Venosa, in the province of Potenza, an uncovered large cross dominates, symbol of the medieval unfinished: the Unfinished Church (Incompiuta), in the abbey of the Most Holy Trinity. Through the historical events that have seen it as a protagonist, this research analyses the relationship with the roman colony Venusia and, subsequently, with the medieval city. This approach made it possible to know the historical, social, urban and technological context in which the Incompiuta was inserted, as the basis for a reliable morphological and architectural reading of the building. The survey of the abbey using digital photogrammetry techniques provided a detailed three-dimensional model, essential for the knowledge of the state of the architectural organism, characterized by a high degree of fragility. The reconstructive hypotheses were supported and validated by the constant relationship with the digital twin derived from the survey and the similarities with other contemporary franco-benedictine churches, and are intended to enhance the ambitious, unfinished architectural project. Furthermore, the preparation of digital contents in augmented reality and virtual reality for the communication of architecture and its decorative vestments finally have the aim of experimenting a new level of use, based on immersion in the reconstructed spatiality and on the interaction with architectural and sculptural shapes through digital elements placed in physical space through augmented reality.

The University as a Settlement Principle Francesco Zuddas, 2019-09-17 The 1960s and the 1970s marked a generational shift in architectural discourse at a time when the revolts inside universities condemned the academic institution as a major force behind the perpetuation of a controlling society. Focusing on the crisis and reform of higher education in Italy, The University as a Settlement Principle investigates how university design became a lens for architects to interpret a complex historical moment that was marked by the construction of an unprecedented number of new campuses worldwide. Implicitly drawing parallels with the contemporary condition of the university under a regime of knowledge commodification, it reviews the vision proposed by architects such as Vittorio Gregotti, Giuseppe Samonà, Archizoom, Giancarlo De Carlo, and Guido Canella, among others, to challenge the university as a bureaucratic and self-contained entity, and defend, instead, the role of higher education as an agent for restructuring vast territories. Through their projects, the book discusses a most fertile and heroic moment of Italian architectural discourse and argues for a reconsideration of architecture's obligation to question the status quo. This work will be of interest to postgraduate researchers and academics in architectural theory and history, campus design, planning theory, and history.

Farm animal proteomics Pedro Rodrigues, David Eckersall, André de Almeida, 2012-06-07 Proteomics is a field with growing interest in almost every area of life sciences. Proteomic techniques, along with potential and obtained results have long been key components of biomedical and pharmaceutical research. In agriculture, animal and veterinary research however, use of proteomics is still limited, despite the large number of potential applications. As a result, there is a pressing need for wider use and dissemination of proteomics in animal and veterinary science research. This book meets this need by bridging the gap between experts in the technology of proteomics and those at the forefront of research into many facets of animal physiology and pathophysiology. The book encompasses a wide range of topics: from muscle and meat proteomics to acute phase proteins and proteomics in aquaculture, to name but a few. The book summarily presents the state of the art in farm animal proteomics research in Europe, providing readers with interesting examples of the applications of this set of advanced technologies as well as useful contact details of colleagues with expertise in the field. The book will be of interest to scientists at the cutting edge of animal and veterinary research who are currently, or are considering, analytical investigation and identification of protein in animal tissue and in pathogens in health and disease. Furthermore the book will provide an insight for proteomic specialists in demonstrating the breadth of applications that their technology can have in animal and food research.

Bibliographie Linguistique de L'annee 1999 Mark Janse, Hella Olbertz, Sijmen Tol, 2003-11-30 Setting out the historical national and religious characteristics of the Italians as they impact on the integration within the European Union, this study makes note of the two characteristics that have an adverse effect on Italian national identity: cleavages between north and south and the dominant role of family. It discusses how for Italians family loyalty is stronger than any other allegiance, including feelings towards their country, their nation, or the EU. Due to such subnational allegiances and values, this book notes that Italian civic society is weaker and engagement at the grass roots is less robust than one finds in other democracies, leaving politics in Italy largely in the hands of political parties. The work concludes by noting that EU membership, however, provides no magic bullet for Italy: it cannot change internal cleavages, the Italian worldview, and family values or the country's mafia-dominated power matrix, and as a result, the underlying absence of fidelity to a shared polity—Italian or European—leave the country as ungovernable as ever.

Multidisciplinary Approaches to Neural Computing Anna Esposito, Marcos Faudez-Zanuy, Francesco Carlo Morabito, Eros Pasero, 2017-08-28 This book presents a collection of contributions in the field of Artificial Neural Networks (ANNs). The themes addressed are multidisciplinary in nature, and closely connected in their ultimate aim to identify features from dynamic realistic signal exchanges and invariant machine representations that can be exploited to improve the quality of life of their end users. Mathematical tools like ANNs are currently exploited in many scientific domains because of their solid theoretical background and effectiveness in providing solutions to many demanding tasks such as appropriately processing (both for extracting features and recognizing) mono- and bi-dimensional dynamic signals, solving strong nonlinearities in the data and providing general solutions for deep and fully connected architectures. Given the multidisciplinary nature of their use and the interdisciplinary characterization of the problems they are applied to – which range from medicine to psychology, industrial and social robotics, computer vision, and signal processing (among many others) – ANNs may provide a basis for redefining the concept of information processing. These reflections are supported by theoretical models and applications presented in the chapters of this book. This book is of primary importance for: (a) the academic research community, (b) the ICT market, (c) PhD students and early-stage researchers, (d) schools, hospitals, rehabilitation and assisted-living centers, and (e) representatives of multimedia industries and standardization bodies.

Quantifying and Processing Biomedical and Behavioral Signals Anna Esposito, Marcos Faudez-Zanuy, Francesco Carlo Morabito, Eros Pasero, 2018-08-17 The book is based on interdisciplinary research on various aspects and dynamics of human multimodal signal exchanges. It discusses realistic application scenarios where human interaction is the focus, in order to identify new methods for data processing and data flow coordination through synchronization, and optimization of new encoding features combining contextually enacted communicative signals, and develop shared digital data repositories and annotation standards for benchmarking the algorithmic feasibility and successive implementation of believable human-computer interaction (HCI) systems. This book is a valuable resource for a. the research community, PhD students, early stage researchers c. schools, hospitals, and rehabilitation and assisted-living centers e. the ICT market, and representatives from multimedia industries
