Hely Hutchinson V. Brayhead Ltd. - The Authority on Actual and Ostensible Authority Pranav Nanda, 2013 The case of Hely Hutchinson v. Brayhead Ltd. till date is taken as authority with regards to actual and ostensible authority in an organisation and liability in terms of employees. In an organisation, is the director an agent? Does he have absolute or actual authority to single-handedly carry out actions with or without consultation from the board of directors or any other such authority? What is the doctrine of estoppel and how is it related to Actual and Ostensible Authority? Are Actual and Ostensible Authority mutually exclusive? What role does the Contract Act play in such situations? These are only a few of the many questions raised in the case. Lord Denning, Lord Pearson and the other Justices have all answered these vital questions in this case, the help of a previous landmark cases like Freeman & Lockyer v. Buckhurst Park Properties (Mangal) Ltd. was taken. This paper consists of enumerable citations of relevant cases which were used in the judgment by the Justices and also are a medium of analyzing viewpoints post Judgment. This case till date is taken as the authority in defining actual authority or ostensible authority in an organisation and it is the sheer quality of the judgment by all the Justices in this case that allows it to remain so especially considering today's context of Company's and their risky elements including the employees. Through this paper, the attempt to answer all these questions has been made and to clearly define what authority in relation to any liability or decision actually is once and for all.

Contract Law in New Zealand Stephen Todd,Jeremy Finn,2019-11-22 Derived from the renowned multi-volume International Encyclopaedia of Laws, this practical analysis of the law of contracts in New Zealand covers every aspect of the subject - definition and classification of contracts, contractual liability, relation to the law of property, good faith, burden of proof, defects, penalty clauses, arbitration clauses, remedies in case of non-performance, damages, power of attorney, and much more. Lawyers who handle transnational contracts will appreciate the explanation of fundamental differences in terminology, application, and procedure from one legal system to another, as well as the international aspects of contract law. Throughout the book, the treatment emphasizes drafting considerations. An introduction in which contracts are defined and contrasted to torts, quasi-contracts, and property is followed by a discussion of the concepts of 'consideration' or 'cause' and other underlying principles of the formation of contract. Subsequent chapters cover the doctrines of 'relative effect', termination of contract, and remedies for non-performance. The second part of the book, recognizing the need to categorize an agreement as a specific contract in order to determine the rules which apply to it, describes the nature of agency, sale, lease, building contracts, and other types of contract. Facts are presented in such a way that readers who are unfamiliar with specific terms and concepts in varying contexts will fully grasp their meaning and significance. Its succinct yet scholarly nature, as well as the practical quality of the information it provides, make this book a valuable time-saving tool for business and legal professionals alike. Lawyers representing parties with interests in New Zealand will welcome this very useful guide, and academics and researchers will appreciate its value in the study of comparative contract law.
