The Nurses' Guide to Psychotherapy Stacey Roles,Kamini Kalia,2024-11-08 This book is a guide for nurses who plan to incorporate psychotherapy into their field of work. Mental illness continues to be on the rise with increases in anxiety disorders, suicidality, and depression among others. Psychotherapy is a well researched intervention that helps individuals to improve and maintain their mental health and well-being. Recently in Ontario, Canada the proclamation of the controlled act of psychotherapy enabled certain members of six professional colleges, including Registered Nurses, to initiate and implement this controlled act. Registered Nurses exist in every nook and cranny across the world, from urban to rural and remote regions and can provide a far reach and excellent care, bridging the gaps for those needing access to psychotherapy services. Nurses have the skill, ability, legislative and regulatory rights to initiate the controlled act of psychotherapy. Nurses can provide psychotherapy treatment and interventions to address the growing needs of the population who experience mental distress. This book is unique in that the target audience is not only the experienced or expert nurse but was also created for nurses looking to shift the primary focus of their career to psychotherapy, for undergraduate student nurses, and for newly graduated nurses pursuing psychotherapy as part of their field of work. This book will build upon the experiences of the nurse client relationship that has always been foundational to nursing and will discuss nurses clinical expertise and knowledge in relation to a holistic approach to care when implementing psychotherapy interventions.

Improving Therapeutic Communication Skills to Improve Patient Outcomes Susan E. Poteet Benfield,2010 Communication skills are an important part of giving competent nursing care. The nursing student struggles with this skill from the beginning in fundamentals of nursing. Taylor, Lillis, Lemone & Lynn (2008) describe communication as essential to each professional nursing role and as the heart of caring. Often students are very concerned about entering the behavioral medicine unit for fear they will not know how to begin an interaction with a client. The interpersonal process recording (written verbatim account of conversation with a patient) often reveals that the student has difficulty responding using correct communication skills. The purpose of this project is to improve the verbal and non-verbal therapeutic communication skills of nurses through improved pedagogy in an associate degree-nursing program. The patient outcome of nurses' improved therapeutic communication is improved communication and relationship building with caregivers. -- Introduction
